

The attorneys and support staff at Allen & Allen work as a single, unified team. Just like their IP phone system.

The Allen & Allen law firm takes a team approach to its personal injury cases. With offices across Virginia, the Richmond-based firm has 22 attorneys and more than 100 support staff members who can be marshalled to work on a case.

Such an approach obviously requires tightly integrated communications between team members. That's what Allen & Allen got when it worked with IPC Technologies on a multi-site implementation of more than 200 ShoreTel IP Phones.

ShoreTel's distributed architecture is ideal for companies such as Allen & Allen that span multiple locations because the ShoreTel system appears and behaves as a single, unified system. It delivers unmatched reliability and manageability with a user interface that sets the standard for ease-of-use.
